

CLOTHES WRINGERS!!

Our stock is very complete just now, and we enumerate herewith our best sellers.

AJAX, No. 14.—For hotel and laundry use. Extra large and heavy rollers, 14-inch, first quality rubber, strongly mounted on hardwood frame, heavy bearings and double leaf steel pressure spring. Price $10.00.

ANCHOR BRAND, KINGSTON GRADE, No. 312.—The highest grade family wringer we have ever seen. The manufacturer claims for this one that it is "The Best Wringer on Earth," and they give a warranty which accompanies every one that we sell. In it they agree to replace, free of charge, any roller that may prove defective, and this guarantee is endorsed with the purchaser's name and date of sale. Made with steel spiral pressure springs enclosed in a hardwood frame with a neatly painted guiding bar. Price $6.50.

THE PRIZE, No. 111.—Has 11-inch heavy rollers, thoroughly vulcanized to bearing shaft. The rollers are inserted in a galvanized steel casing and run on steel balls. There are no exposed cog wheels, these being inside the galvanized casing, thus protecting the clothes from entanglement. The hardwood frame is fitted with an improved guide board for spreading the clothes. Price $6.00.

THE KING.—Another ball bearing wringer of superior quality, differing from the Prize only in that the cog wheels are not steel encased. In every other respect it is equally good and the price is twenty-five cents lower. Price $5.25.

WESTERN STAR, No. 111.—A nice medium priced family wringer, rolls 11 1/2 inch, screw adjustment for regulating pressure. The holdfast clamps will adapt themselves to any kind of tub, either steel, wood or fibre. It is also fitted with an improved guide board for spreading the clothes and is very neatly finished, the hardwood frame being done in natural wood and the bars holding the pressure spring are finished in brilliant black, with gold lettering. Price $4.50.

EUREKA, No. 10.—A steel frame wringer with galvanized iron adjustable clamps and 10-inch composition rubber rollers. The pressure is obtained from heavy end springs of steel, 1 1/2 inches by three-sixteenths, which are self-adjusting. This is our lowest priced wringer, and is well worth $3.00.

RED DEER EXHIBITION A GREAT SUCCESS.

Fine Horses, Splendid Stock and Superb Weather.

Everything tended towards making the Red Deer Exhibition's Fall Fair on Thursday and Friday last a success. It would have been difficult to have ordered better weather, and the rain of Wednesday kept many from attending and they came to the Fair. There was the largest crowd that has ever attended a show in Red Deer, and the different events were carried out promptly and well.

The judge of horses, Mr. Hunter, stated our show of stallions was the best he had seen in the west. The show of dairy stock was also particularly strong, but there was an absence of Shorthorns. Such well known breeders as A. H. Trimble, C. A. J. Sharnan, J. J. Richards, A. Bethune, Thos. Brown & Son, and James Bower had large exhibits, and E. W. B. Yorkland surprised the breeders by taking first and third for Ayrshire cows over Mr. Trimble's fine stock, and also the cup offered by the Merchants Bank for best cow any dairy breed. The winner of the cup was "Miss Likely," bred by Hon. W. Owens, Montebello, Que., and produced as a three year old 11,000 lbs. of milk and 527 lbs. of butter. The third prize winner, "Borrowdowns Lady Princess" imp. 25,158, was first prize winner at the leading shows in Scotland as a yearling, is true to type, but being in her 3 year old form was not fully matured for the class of open cows. These two cows were selected from the famous herd at Stonycroft Stock Farm, St. Anne de Bellevue, Que., where Mr. Yorkland was formerly manager. Considering that Mr. Trimble had defeated everything in sight in the rest of the province and has over 50 prizes to his credit with his excellent herd, Mr. Yorkland certainly is to be congratulated on having stock capable of carrying off the honors over such a capable and well known breeder. Mr. Sharnan's Jerseys, Mr. Richards' Clydes, and that splendid Belgian stallion shown by Mr. Hunter of Ontario and owned by a syndicate of leading farmers on the Medicine Valley, all added to the attractions of the show.

There was only one entry for Local Improvement Districts, namely, that of Burnt Lake, and the exhibit was very good. The exhibits of roots and vegetables were wonderful for Alberta. Choice celery, 12 ounce onions, corn, vegetable marrow, dill, beets, carrots, turnips, cabbages and potatoes in great variety and of the best covered the tables.

The ladies department was represented by a great variety of fancy work and articles of all descriptions in advance of previous years, and the competition in some instances was very keen. The children's work, from scholars of public schools, a splendid feature of the Fair and something original with Red Deer, was very good, exhibits being made from Red Deer, Bowden, Olds, Didsbury, Markerville and other points.

The Natural History Society had a tent, and Capt. Keast exhibited therein all the noxious and other weeds of the district. Mrs. Dr. George had a book containing all the flowers of Alberta beautifully painted, and other books contained leaves and plants pressed. Among the rare plants was an Alberta fern found only near open springs in the thick bush, and a very rare plant.

The school marching and singing by Horn Hill school, under the able management of Miss Soley, the teacher of the school, and Mrs. Wigle, was remarkably good and drew forth repeated applause. Some 35 pupils participated, and they sang two choruses and marched and counter-marched until Dr. George and the cadet corps turned green with envy. This was one of the most pleasant features of the Fair, and we hope next year to see at least half a dozen schools take part from the surrounding district.

Some of the ladies with single drivers, who desired to go in that class, were unfortunately placed in another class, and the single driver class had no entries. President Jamieson, Secretary Welliver, and the directors and stewards worked hard and everything passed off like clockwork, and they are to be congratulated on the splendid result.

Quiet Wedding.

Miss Mabel Bawtineimer, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Bawtineimer, was united in marriage on Wednesday to Mr. Wm. L. Jones, Gaetz Valley, Mr. Brown performing the ceremony. The wedding guests were the immediate relatives, and Mr. Bawtineimer's residence was nicely set off with flowers, and the party gave the young people a most hearty send-off. The bride was attired in cream voile, her bridesmaid, Miss Lillian Bawtineimer, in white organdie. Mr. Ettinger supported the groom. After a dainty luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Jones left for their home at Gaetz Valley, carrying with them many good wishes for a long and happy married life.

Oh, don't laugh when you see "The Music," you can't help yourself; you've simply got to laugh; come and try it, and at the same time help the hospital fund. Lyric Theatre, Thursday, Oct. 28th, 1909.

United Farmers' Meeting.

The regular meeting of the U. F. A. was held on Saturday last, Oct. 2nd, in the fire hall.

Among those present were W. Jenkins, J. Speirs, Lamonte, Fiske, S. Wilson, J. J. Richards, Van Slyke, Keast, Galbraith, G. Brown, G. W. Smith, Jamieson, Wilson, Sharnan, John McCann, Van Slyke, Jr., Crocker, Epworth, the President, Secretary and others.

President Bower, in opening the meeting, said the question of markets was a vital one to the farming community. This meeting had been called with the object of discussing the question of organizing for mutual protection, for the purpose of ascertaining if we could join hands, and by getting some one in town to act for us, store our hay and grain until we could obtain a good price for our produce, and to save the middle man's profit by selling direct to the consumer in large quantities. He reviewed the proceedings with regard to a good man, list all the crop we have in the way of grain, hay, potatoes, etc., in his hands and let him sell for the best price he can get for the benefit of all. A lively discussion took place on the question before the meeting, in which Messrs. Speirs, Crocker, R. E. Fiske, Keast, Smith, Jamieson and others took part.

Mr. Speirs said it would be necessary to build a warehouse if we shipped our own hay. Mr. Crocker in reply said if you could guarantee to furnish quarters for storing farmers' stuff you certainly would make money.

Mr. Fiske was pleased at the trend of the discussion. He had worked for years along the same lines and hoped something could be done, and the difficulty was working together. He assured the meeting of the co-operation of his district.

Mr. Jamieson contended the difficulty was the want of machinery to handle the hay. It required money to run a co-operative association of this kind. The government had set aside money to investigate the beef and pork industries. Commissioners had been appointed and we should expect some results along these lines. We are advocating a little local show of our own and would have to foot the bill ourselves. You cannot sell goods at hazard but must be bound by an organization of some kind and you must pay for it. He doubted whether the scheme could be successful.

Mr. Sharnan thought there was a great deal of objection that was somewhat superfluous. President Bower asked Mr. Jamieson if as a drover in the old days he would not pay more for a bunch of cattle than he would if he had to collect them himself. He said he certainly would.

Capt. Keast and Mr. Fiske moved that a committee of five be appointed to look into the question under consideration and formulate a set of rules for our guidance and report at a general meeting to be held Wednesday, Oct. 13th, of all the branches in the vicinity of Red Deer, when steps will be taken to complete organization if the meeting deem it advisable.

A cordial invitation was extended to all farmers to be present at the meeting.

POEM DANCING.

A Peculiar Fad Which Has Become a Craze in London.

Dancing masters in London are making much money these days and as a result are filled with happiness and a hope that their remarkable season of prosperity be not too fleeting. It all comes about because of the fact that society is, what may be termed, dance crazy. At present pictures are being shown, and a poem is a song or an incident is the rage. The society ball practices for hours at a stretch in her home, and she expresses through motion the burden of her message. Not only must her theme be original, but the steps and movements by which she indicates it must be novel and above all poetic. Imitation is fatal.

Prayerettes are also expressed by dancing, three or four friends clubbing together to perform them. Some excellent results have been achieved. Success does not, however, always pursue the steps of the society dancers of dramatic episodes. Some good fan has been afforded by the tripping of the light fantastic by women whose lot is not altogether enviable, in the middle of some eloquent passage, to puff and pump like a tired horse taking a long breath.

It is not only women who are to be seen for the new dancing. Men, curious to relate, have taken to it with avidity, and occasionally with more laughable results than those obtained by the fair sex. For it is not by any means the ladies who always have a story to tell. Often it is the mature, and these who are behind the door when good looks have faded in Paris and Berlin, is said to be just now netting an income of some £50,000 a year through lessons.

As a rule, pupils bring with them to their professor the poem or incident which they wish to be taught, and the teacher demonstrates the movements which will best portray the subject. Teachers of "dramatic" dancing, and "pictures" are cropping up by the score. One society woman who has taken to teaching her friends, the lady having studied in Paris and Berlin, is said to be just now netting an income of some £50,000 a year through lessons.

When the pupil is perfect and the performance takes place, the verse or other subject which has inspired the performer, printed exquisitely on satin or vellum, artistically illuminated and bearing a photograph or photographs of the dancers, is distributed among the audience.

There is a Chinese dance which is attracting a great deal of attention. It is called the "moon dance," and is danced in Chinese costume. Several fond mothers are having their little girls have lessons in it, and it is especially effective when performed by children.

Caught With a Moustestrup.
The large black crow of South Africa is a tremendous gorger, and he does enormous damage to the meales and other crops.
A sufferer has devised a clever way of frightening off these pests. A long stick is first firmly planted in the ground. A captured crow is then attached to the stick just above the ground. On top of the stick is fixed a steel moustestrup.

The crow, maddened by its unaccounted captivity, screams, and flaps its wings wildly. Immediately any crow in the vicinity who overhears the outcry will fly down and settle on top of the stick, and go down—whether in contempt or pity is not known—at the prisoner. The moustestrup then takes its toll.

Thus, one by one, quite an army of crows is sometimes caught. Then, when the supply of victims is apparently exhausted, the crow which is set at liberty; but not until a flapping rump has been attached to it. When it would be in the air, they will have none of it. It becomes an outcast, and all the others bound down, entirely deserting the meale-field on doing so.

But to those who are near the field when the strategem here described is being carried out the question occurs: Is not the terrible noise the crows make too dear a price to pay for the saving of many meales?

Borneo's Queer Animals.
There is no country in the world more inviting to the naturalist than Borneo, where are found the flying squirrels, flying foxes, flying lizards, flying frogs, and the natives report flying snakes. Among the most potted birds is the little swift, Collocalia nidifica. Their nests are eaten by the Chinese and are regarded as a great luxury. These birds build their nests in limestone caves of a glutinous saliva which they produce from their glands. No sticks or any foreign substances are used. The collection of these nests is an important industry with the natives, though they pay a tax on all they take to market. They are served at the great feasts of the Chinese, especially at weddings.

The French Postoffice.
The French postal system was inaugurated in the reign of Louis XI., but the first director general was appointed by Louis XIV. He formed the office, paying a million francs a year for the privilege. This method continued until the revolution, when the farmer was abolished, and the control was given to ten managers elected by universal suffrage. That plan did not work very satisfactorily, and the office of director general was received under the consulate. The office under secretary for post and telegraphs, held by M. Simey, was first created in 1871, abolished in 1876 and revived again ten years later.—Westminster Gazette.

The Penalty of Goodness.
He—You don't seem to care a straw whether I am comfortable or not. You are not as good as your sister was to her husband. As long as he lived she was perfectly devoted to him, and never a day of seeking his happiness. She—Yes, and what was the result? He got to love her so well that he made a provision in his will that she should not marry again.

Lacombe Purchases Electric Light System.

Lacombe, Sept. 30.—The bylaw to raise $25,000 to purchase the Eladine River lighting plant carried by practically a unanimous vote today. Ninety-seven votes were polled in favor of the bylaw while only four were polled against it.

The Tale of a Land Company

A PEACE RIVER SCHEME WHICH DID NOT WORK—TREATED WITH LENIENCY.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The Canadian Gazette contains a notice of the cancellation of an agreement between the Government and the Peace River Colonization and Development Company. This company had been organized for establishing in the Peace River valley a French speaking clerically managed company. In making the agreement the Department of the Interior had negotiated, among others, with Hon. L. P. Brodeur, now Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and a priest, the Rev. Father J. A. Lemieux, was president of the company. In 1900 a reservation was made to the company of a solid block of sixteen townships odd and even numbered sections in the Grand Forks of the Peace and Smoky rivers. The terms were that the company was to locate 50 settlers within three years of survey, 100 settlers in five years thereafter, and 100 settlers in every succeeding five years period, until 1,200 had been located. A study of this will show that the company, by doing the minimum work right along, could keep the land tied up till 1959. It was to be allowed to buy a considerable proportion of the land for $1 an acre, payable in instalments.

This parent company handed over an option to an American Company, the Kent Realty and Investment Company, Grand Forks, N.D., at $4 an acre. This company sought to sell the lands at $7 an acre wholesale or $11 an acre retail. Efforts were made to sell the lands in the United States, in England, in France, in Belgium, and elsewhere in Europe. While the Company made these efforts in Europe, it did nothing in the Peace River country. The term set by the first agreement expired and nothing had been done. The Department granted a second agreement, allowing them to October, 1907, to effect the first settlement of fifty, and reserving the land for 20 years from the date of survey. From papers submitted by Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., who brought the matter up in the House, it appeared that the Company did make one feeble effort, in 1907, to comply with the conditions. It sent a party out from Edmonton. "When they got them in," said Col. Hughes, "the party broke up in a free fight, smashing sauce pans and frying pans over each others heads, and the gentleman who brought the matter in said that from the start the Company knew that they were not going to place them on those lands, but brought them in order to place them on some other lands, as they were making a deal with the Government."

The Company had failed in 1903 to observe the terms of the bargain. It had now in 1907 failed to carry out its part of the second agreement. In June, 1908, Colonel Hughes drew attention in Parliament to the leniency with which it was being treated, and Mr. Oliver said that the Department was moving towards cancellation.

Now in September the impetuous and rapidly moving Department has effected the cancellation. The episode has lasted nine years and two months from the date of the first order in council; or over ten years in all.

J. M. Douglas Carries Lib. Convention by One Vote.
PARTY STANDS BY OLD POLICY OF OTTAWA CONTROLLING PUBLIC DOMAINS.

Wetaskiwin, Sept. 30.—One of the stormiest conventions held by the Liberal party in Alberta was that held here today and which nominated J. M. Douglas, president of the board of trade, Strathcona, against the combined forces of the south. It was the south against the north, and Douglas won out by the narrow margin of one vote. The situation was thoroughly canvassed last night and this forenoon. The northern delegates dropped Mills late last night, finding it impossible to secure the number of supporters necessary to carry the convention against either Dr. Robertson or T. Womey. Then they switched on to Douglas, and upon him they obtained a solid north.

SOUTH DIVIDED.
Early in the day the south was hopelessly divided. A. S. Rosson had made a vigorous campaign, but he was outvoted, knifed by his own party at the last moment. There are rumors tonight that he will run as Independent Liberal, providing no Conservative enters the field.

There were 174 delegates present, and 16 were put in nomination, of whom 10 stood, the others gracefully retiring, according to prior arrangements. Stronous efforts had been made to secure more withdrawals but the efforts were unavailing.

The proceedings of the convention were animated in the extreme and compliments were freely exchanged across the floor. Several ballots were taken, and the victims, one by one dropped out, until finally only two stood. Mr. Douglas and Mayor Twomey of Camrose. When the ballot on these names was taken the result stood 88 to 85. The nomination was upon motion of Mr. Twomey and seconded by A. L. Marks, Ledue, made unanimous.

A feature of the convention was the sharp showdown given the milk-warm policy of Mr. Telford, M.P., and A. L. Marks with respect to asking the assistance of the federal government to build roads in Alberta through grants of land. The convention decided to stand by the old policy of Alberta being without her public domains. It was either this or the adoption of the Conservative platform.

Senator Talbot presided, and Stanley Jones of Calgary was the secretary.

Conservatives and the Tariff.

DEMAND FOR A CONVENTION TO CONSIDER THE PARTY'S ATTITUDE ON THE SUBJECT.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—A demand for a convention of the Conservative party has recently been made by the Toronto News. It follows up this by urging the Conservative party thoroughly to consider its attitude to the tariff.

"It is denounced," said the News, "as the party of high protection, while certainly as much protectionist support goes to the Government as to the Opposition. There is reason to think that Liberals are decisively in the majority in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. In its whole attitude towards the tariff, the Government, not perhaps, so much through the statements of Ministers as through the utterances of its journalistic mouthpieces, is an organized hypocrisy. The design of these newspapers is to hold the low-tariff element for the Government, while the Government itself legislates for the support of protectionists."

After alluding to the history of the Liberal party on the tariff question, the News continues: "It is manifest that in Canada we have only a moderate tariff. Generally the West is opposed to extreme protection, and there is still a certain low tariff element in the rural constituencies of Ontario and in the Eastern Provinces. These facts Conservatives understand, and they know that if their leaders should secure office at the next election there would be no general increase of duties. There probably would be a reduction of duties equal to any that will be made by representatives of the Liberal party."

While the Conservative party, like the Liberal party, believes in measure of protection to be necessary for Canada, it does not propose, in case of success in the constituencies, to raise the duties above the figures at which they now stand. As the Liberal party has adopted the old Conservative policy, and become a protectionist party, the Conservatives should "take the tariff out of politics" by making the meaning so plain that they cannot henceforth be represented as the "hiringlings of the manufacturers." The Government press should not be permitted to continue its appeal to low tariffism, and the Conservatives should carry the sentiment against the Conservative party, while the Government, by its actual legislation, conceded the demands of the great body of manufacturers."

In conclusion the News says: "It is important for the Conservative party to meet at an early day in national convention, and give the country to understand that, upon the whole, the Government maintains a policy of adequate protection, and that a general increase of duties is no part of the intention or platform of the Opposition."

FANCY BISCUITS

DIRECT FROM THE FACTORY FANCY BISCUITS IN FOLEY'S MOISTURE-PROOF CARTONS

Instead of getting biscuits from a box that may be often opened you get them in cartons just as they leave the factory—never touched by outside air, nor by dust or moisture.

There are a few of the lines you can get direct in the cartons: Foley's Society Tea, Foley's Sodas, Dainty City Sodas.

There are many more, fresher, tastier, in all ways better than any other fancy biscuits.

MR. TELFORD'S SCHEME TURNED DOWN.

Mr. Telford's scheme of road building was turned down by the Liberal convention at Wetaskiwin last week. The principal points in this scheme of the local member for Leduc are as follows: 1. $1,500,000 is needed annually in Alberta for adequately building roads and bridges. 2. Let the Provincial government, the municipalities, and the Dominion government each furnish one-third. 3. The $500,000 share from the Dominion government could be obtained from a grant of public lands. 4. This grant to be two odd sections in each township, say sections 9 and 27. This would amount to 6,000,000 acres of unreserved land. 5. This amount of land sold by the provincial government at $5 per acre would furnish $500,000 for roads and bridges for 60 years. 6. In case more money was required immediately the Provincial government could float debentures and borrow money on the security of the above lands.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

The United Farmers' Association is getting down to business, and at a meeting Saturday discussed a scheme whereby the farmers could pool their produce and sell direct to the consumer. Certainly it should be easier to sell a large quantity of hay or grain to the consumer than in small lots. Another meeting of the association is called for Wednesday next at 2 o'clock in the fire hall to receive a report of the committee and discuss the question before the association.

ALL THE DIFFERENCE WHERE THE X IS PLACED.

(Calgary Herald.)

The Red Deer News censures the ratepayers because there were only 15 votes cast on a bylaw to raise $4,000 for an additional pump. Only two of the votes were against the bylaw. In Calgary the council never kicks about the total vote cast, it is those who put their X against the proposal that cause trouble.

Kennedy---McCune.

A very pleasant and interesting wedding took place on Wednesday, September 29th, when Miss Nettie, only daughter of Captain and Mrs. McCune, of Melrose, was united in marriage to Mr. Lauchlan Kennedy, of Ridgewood. Promptly at 5 o'clock p.m. the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, entered the drawing room, looking charming in a lovely gown of Alce blue silk, enlivened with white and orange blossoms. Miss Stella Watt, as bridesmaid, looked pretty in a dress of white poplin, while Mr. Oscar McCune, brother of the bride, attended the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. E. Goeling, after which the wedding guests, to the number of fifty, immediate relatives of the contracting parties, adjourned to the dining room, where a most sumptuous repast was partaken of.

At about 9 in the evening some 150 friends of the family arrived to tender congratulations to the happy young couple. The large hall, decorated for the occasion, was the scene of a most enjoyable dance, in which all joined and kept up till early morning.

The numerous and costly presents received testify, to a very high degree, the esteem in which the newly married couple are held by the entire community.

While these pills are exceedingly powerful in regulating the generative portion of the female system, they are strictly safe to use. Refuse all cheap imitations. Dr. de Van's are sold at $5.00 a box, three for $15.00. Mailed to any address. The Scottell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Ont.

Do You Realise the Danger of

POISONED FINGER

DEATH OFTEN LURKS IN A CUT.

YOU see this danger illustrated in the case of Mr.

W. C. Edwards, a well-known Friendly Society leader, of Peter Street, Toronto. He cut one of his fingers with a piece of glass, and instead of applying

Zam-Buk to prevent blood poisoning, and to heal it, he neglected

the cut, and blood poisoning followed. He says: "The blood poison from the finger spread up my hand and arm and caused me terrible agony. After two months' treatment the doctor said there was no cure, and amputation would have to take place if I intended to save my arm. I left that doctor and consulted another.

After a few weeks' treatment, he also told me that operation would be necessary. He said the bone

TWO OF THEM.

I'm fond of Kitty and her cat. The truly is a puss! I mean the kitten, but at that I also mean the girl. She is so shiny, sleek and fat. The cat I mean—I love. To stroke her fur the while we chat. The girl I'm speaking of. I chat with one and with my hand I stroke the other's soft pat. I trust that you can understand I mean the girl. She doesn't like to have me stroke her back—I mean the girl. No, dare I not? Well, there's a joke. My head is in a whirl. I mean that Kitty doesn't care. To have me pet her side and I mean the girl. For when I'm with my Kitty there—With her I'm so easily content— I lean so close to pat her head—The cat's—and talk to her—I mean the girl—her cheeks grow red, And she will loudly purr. It is the cat that pure, you see. I wish could be clearer. Now, Kitty's faithful as can be. And I keep sighing heavier. But when she jumps upon my knee—Of course I mean the kitten—And Kitty runs away from me. I'm stung, not scratched nor bitten. —Chicago News.

Her Get-up.

"What's the difference between vision and sight?"
"See that girl?"
"Yes."
"Well, she's a vision, but her general get-up's a sight."

Opposed to Slang.
Donald had been to Sunday school and on coming home was asked what he had learned. The lesson was the story of Joseph, and the small learner was evidently full of his subject.

"Oh," he said, "it was about a boy, and his brothers took him and put him in a hole in the ground, and then they killed another boy and took the first boy's coat and dipped it in the blood of this boy, and—"
"Oh, no, Donald, not another boy!" his sister interrupted, horrified. But Donald stood his ground.
"It was, too," he insisted. Then he added, "The teacher said 'kidd,' but I don't know words like that."—Woman's Home Companion.

To Sympathize.
"Women aren't nearly as sympathetic as they are cracked up to be," said the hardened old sinner. "When my wife I want to sit up with a sick friend she always objects."
"Mine doesn't," replied the gay young man gloomily. "She always wants to come along too."—Minneapolis Journal.

What to Push.
"Any one," remarked the old gentleman, "can build up a fortune if he has plenty of push."
"That depends upon the way the push is applied," rejoined the wise youth. "There isn't much money in pushing a goat or a lawn mower."—St. Louis Republic.

Their Training.
"I should think baseball men would be particularly useful in the army in actual warfare."
"Why especially baseball men?"
"Because they would know better than others how to fight a pitched battle."—Boston Transcript.

Podgers' Allment.
"What's the matter with Podgers? I met him limping along and holding his jaw."
"Got the foot and mouth disease."
"Heaven! You don't say so!"
"Yes. Corns and toothache."—Brown's Magazine.

Architecture.
"A man who is the architect of his own fortune should get a great deal of comfort out of life."
"But he doesn't, as a rule," answered Miss Cayenne. "He's too busy building additions."—Washington Star.

The Courageous Character.
"So Higgins has written a historical novel?"
"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "Who is the hero of the book?"
"The man who has undertaken to publish it."—Houston Post.

A Decent Proposition.
Bargain—Hold up your hands! Victim—All right, old man, but for heaven's sake don't ask me to hold up both feet at the same time. If there's anything I hate being made a monkey of—Boston Globe.

Hypocrisy.
Dr. Cook—Briggs, what is a hypocrite.
Briggs, "A hypocrite is a student who comes to freshman English class with a smile on his face—Wisconsin Splint.

Patched.
Stranger In Their Midst—Fishing any good here?
Native—Naw; town went dry last election.—Puck.

CHAPTER XVI.

ROOM'S intentions were clear. It was not a tender, but a warning. The old man was in a hurry to get to the door to do the deed of valor just described. He had started out to do his duty by his master as he felt it his duty to do the deed of valor just described. He had started out to do his duty by his master as he felt it his duty to do the deed of valor just described.

The gaunt clerk kept his chin well covered with his great moustache, the broad collar of his waistcoat turned up about his face. The rapid plan that dashed into his mind comprehended that two things, the most important in life to Frances Cable and the hope of escaping without being recognized. He felt that she had not been in the water long enough to drown. Every hope depended upon the force of the blow that he imagined had been delivered.

Called to the door, his teeth chattering like castanets, the old man was stopping over the inanimate form on the ground when the two men came up. In answer to their startled questions he merely said that he had seen the struggle from across the street, but had been too late to prevent the tragedy.

"We must get her into one of these houses quick," he grunted. "Take hold of her, you. And you over there, hurry and ring a doorbell. Get inside and phone for a doctor—a doctor is what the police will want. We may be able to save her life."

The first of the rich men's homes denoted their admission. The man of the house said he would not stand for the notoriety. Droom, supporting the head of the wet, leg figure, made a remark which the man was never to forget. At the second house they were admitted.

In an instant all was confusion. A card game was broken up, and guests of the house assisted their host and hostess in all manner of unnecessary things. Droom made a call for the police, calls for stimulants, maida, hot water bottles—everything.

"She's been robbed," said one of the men. "Her jewelry has been torn off. Look at the blood!"

"She's been dressed, too," said another. "Say, her face looks familiar!" To the amazement of every man, the lips of the woman parted and a gasp, choking sound issued from between them, a slight shudder swept over her frame.

"She's alive!" exclaimed Droom. "Get these wet clothes off of her—quick!"

With a Droom stood aloof, puzzling himself vainly to the effort to solve an inside mystery. He had been told a few minutes ago to come himself for pulling the woman out of the water, but now the belief grew stronger within him that her assailant was not James Bansemmer. His viewpoint changed. If such was the case there would be no need to fear Mrs. Cable's story if she refused sufficiently to tell it. On the other hand, if it was Bansemmer, he had rescued her to all purposes. He was conscious finally that some one was speaking of this to the policeman. Droom repeated his brief story. "What is your name and where do you live?"

"My name is Elias Droom, and I live over in Wells street."

"Could you identify the man?"

"I don't think so."

"What were you doing over in this part of town?"

"Walking up to see the skaters on the park lagoon. But what's that got to do with it? You'd better be out looking for the thief instead of wasting time on me here, married Droom. The officer gazed at him for a while, not willing what might have happened if the captain and a swarm of bluecoats had appeared on the scene at that moment. Two minutes later they were off scouring the lake front in search of the mysterious holdup man. Two plain clothes men remained to question the witnesses and to inspect the neighborhood in which the crime was committed.

Word came from the inner room that Mrs. Cable was regaining consciousness.

"Does—can she throw any light on the case?" asked Elias Droom.

"She has uttered no word except her husband's name. I think she is still calling upon him for help, poor thing!" said the young woman who bore the news.

"Can't you be notified," said one of the men.

"I'll try to get it over the phone," said Droom quickly. "I'm going past the house. I'll stop in and tell him. Let the officer guard the door and get out the wet garments. I'm an old man, you know."

The probable solution had come to the mind of the old man. He hurried to the street his mind was full of the theory. He scarcely could wait for the door of David Cable's house to be opened. The maid announced that Mr. and Mrs. Cable were out. It was enough for Droom. He put the puzzle together and merely said that he had seen the struggle from across the street, but had been too late to prevent the tragedy.

"What is your name and where do you live?"

"My name is Elias Droom, and I live over in Wells street."

"Could you identify the man?"

"I don't think so."

"What were you doing over in this part of town?"

"Walking up to see the skaters on the park lagoon. But what's that got to do with it? You'd better be out looking for the thief instead of wasting time on me here, married Droom. The officer gazed at him for a while, not willing what might have happened if the captain and a swarm of bluecoats had appeared on the scene at that moment. Two minutes later they were off scouring the lake front in search of the mysterious holdup man. Two plain clothes men remained to question the witnesses and to inspect the neighborhood in which the crime was committed.

Word came from the inner room that Mrs. Cable was regaining consciousness.

"Does—can she throw any light on the case?" asked Elias Droom.

"She has uttered no word except her husband's name. I think she is still calling upon him for help, poor thing!" said the young woman who bore the news.

"Can't you be notified," said one of the men.

"I'll try to get it over the phone," said Droom quickly. "I'm going past the house. I'll stop in and tell him. Let the officer guard the door and get out the wet garments. I'm an old man, you know."

The probable solution had come to the mind of the old man. He hurried to the street his mind was full of the theory. He scarcely could wait for the door of David Cable's house to be opened. The maid announced that Mr. and Mrs. Cable were out. It was enough for Droom. He put the puzzle together and merely said that he had seen the struggle from across the street, but had been too late to prevent the tragedy.

"We must get her into one of these houses quick," he grunted. "Take hold of her, you. And you over there, hurry and ring a doorbell. Get inside and phone for a doctor—a doctor is what the police will want. We may be able to save her life."

The first of the rich men's homes denoted their admission. The man of the house said he would not stand for the notoriety. Droom, supporting the head of the wet, leg figure, made a remark which the man was never to forget. At the second house they were admitted.

In an instant all was confusion. A card game was broken up, and guests of the house assisted their host and hostess in all manner of unnecessary things. Droom made a call for the police, calls for stimulants, maida, hot water bottles—everything.

"She's been robbed," said one of the men. "Her jewelry has been torn off. Look at the blood!"

"She's been dressed, too," said another. "Say, her face looks familiar!" To the amazement of every man, the lips of the woman parted and a gasp, choking sound issued from between them, a slight shudder swept over her frame.

With a Droom stood aloof, puzzling himself vainly to the effort to solve an inside mystery. He had been told a few minutes ago to come himself for pulling the woman out of the water, but now the belief grew stronger within him that her assailant was not James Bansemmer. His viewpoint changed. If such was the case there would be no need to fear Mrs. Cable's story if she refused sufficiently to tell it. On the other hand, if it was Bansemmer, he had rescued her to all purposes. He was conscious finally that some one was speaking of this to the policeman. Droom repeated his brief story. "What is your name and where do you live?"

"My name is Elias Droom, and I live over in Wells street."

"Could you identify the man?"

"I don't think so."

"What were you doing over in this part of town?"

ROSY-CHEEKED BABIES

"Nothing in the world is as healthy, as comfortable and joy as a healthy, rosy-cheeked, happy baby. But the price of Baby's health is constant vigilance on the part of the mother. When the baby is born, the mother must be on the alert to detect any signs of illness, and to treat them at once. No other medicine can take the place of Baby's Own Tablets in relieving and curing the ills of infancy and childhood, and there is no other medicine as safe. Mrs. Wm. Vigners, Farnham, Ont., says:—'My baby was troubled with his stomach, and was very cross while getting his teeth, and did not sleep well at night. I gave him Baby's Own Tablets with the best results. He is now one of the best-natured babies one could wish.' Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

"Love is the wine of life," quoted Wiseman in the "Morning Post." "And marriage is the morning after," added Simpkinson.

Revive the Jaded Condition.—When energy flags and the cares of business become irksome; when the whole system is out of sorts and there is general depression, try Parmenter's Vegetable Pills. They will regulate the action of a deranged stomach and a disordered liver, and make you feel like a new man. No one need suffer a day from debilitated digestion when a simple and effective pill can be got at any drug store.

Wounded Dignity.—Underlined your husband calls at the registrar's to give in the name of his first-born. Registrar—"What is it you want?" Husband—"To report the birth of a son." Registrar—"Go back, my little man, and tell your father he'll have to come himself. This is business, not play."

Matter of Business.—Highrow (casually)—I get twenty cents a word for my stuff, that's a word painter. Lowrow (scoffingly)—That's nothing. I get two dollars a word for mine. I'm a sign painter.

Dear Sir,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disgraced for a couple of weeks. Was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

Yours truly, W.A.V.R.

BOUND TO KEEP YOUTHFUL.

The Divine Sarah New Trends
With the Step of a Girl.

Sarah Bernhardt—the divine Sarah—is said to be responsible for the introduction into Paris of the new "heel of youth," which has had a remarkable effect upon the gait of almost every old habitue of the grand boulevards. Indeed, the new gait has had much the same effect claimed for the far-famed, but elusive
"fountain of eternal youth," and the fortunate wearers, despite their advanced years, appear in all the vigor,
apparently, of youth.

Sarah Bernhardt, by her art, has conquered nearly all the defects that mortal flesh is heir to. As every one knows, Bernhardt, the marvel of the stage, is well advanced in years. Her flesh has accumulated to a dangerous point for boyish impersonation, but by an intelligent make-up and by the cunning skill of the costumer, the public is deceived. The heavy lines of fat are concealed, but the slenderness of step, the halting gait of age—all these were the rub. The resourceful Sarah, with the aid of her body-maker, by their united thought and effort, produced this heel of youth,
the heel with firmness, despite their advanced years, appear in all the vigor,
apparently, of youth.

The boot or shoe, when on the foot,
shows no evidence of the interior mechanism, so closely have all signs of a tampered heel been hidden. A hollow is first cut in the centre of the heel and a tiny, spiral wire spring inserted. A movable bottom layer is capped over it and so slight is the movement that it is almost imperceptible to the eye, yet the mere quiver of the elastic fibre is enough to produce the youthful step.

STIMULANTS OF GENIUS.

Various Means Employed to Arouse Mental Activity.

To one engaged in literary work there comes a time when for the time being the imagination flags.
Ideals seem to have vanished and all appeals to inspiration seem to be powerless. There are well known cases in which great writers have had recourse to artificial stimuli.

Voltaire and Balzac would what they required in coffee. Goethe preferred burgundy, while De Musset and Edgar Allan Poe fled to alcohol.

In his early days Goethe found that indulgence in wine impeded his intellectual work, for he had noticed that when Schiller drank more than usual the literary results were deplorable. The fault with which Schiller had been reproached by his
critics, Goethe declared, was deplorable. The fault with which Schiller had been reproached by his
critics, Goethe declared, was deplorable. The fault with which Schiller had been reproached by his
critics, Goethe declared, was deplorable.

More innocent have been the means employed by others to awaken inspiration. Some like to have noise and movement around them. One French painter does his best work when his friends are fencing in the room or talking and shouting about him.

Some writers go to a cafe or walk up and down the busy streets to think over what they are to write. Men engaged in scientific pursuits will walk furiously up and down their room with bent heads and absent look probing to the depths the problems that baffle them.

Kant went for the same walk every day, thinking over his Kritik. Caesar Franck used to play for an hour passages from his Bourneide to excite himself to composition.

Freezing Flowers Keeps Them Fresh.
Freezing flowers to keep them fresh is a modern idea. They are picked in the bud and preserved by refrigeration while being transported. When unpacked they are found free of damage and when placed in water and left alone they slowly awaken and come into full bloom. It appears that experiments are being made in South Africa with a view to dispatching them in this way. It is picked in the bud and preserved by refrigeration while being transported. When unpacked they are found free of damage and when placed in water and left alone they slowly awaken and come into full bloom.

A Dinner in Mexico.
The dinner began with soup, followed by an array of courses, mostly compounds of things I did not recognize and nearly all very hot with chili peppers, but on the whole palatable. Frijoles (beans) were served just before the mutton. That is a warning to you who have had all you are going to get and to satisfy yourself on that it you have not had enough of the other things. The bread was well cooked and good. The bread was in the form of rolls, sweetened and of poor quality—"pan blanco" it is called.
It is the characteristic bread, however,
of Mexico—when bread is to be had at all. The coffee was of good quality, good, muddy and very strong. It is burned black, ground to a powder, boiled and served, grounds and all.
You are supposed to drink the grounds—

Department of Interior Slipping Back into the Old Bureaucratic Days.

There is serious reason to believe that the handling of the western land settlement problem
by the Interior Department is deteriorating into a slavish observance of rules and red tape. It is slipping back into the old hard-tempered methods which years ago made it unpopular in the west.

Two specific incidents have recently been heard of in this city.

A certain man was applying for a "purchased homestead" and of course had to wait his turn at the land office. He had been land-hunting and knew of several quarter sections which would suit him. He was rather far down the line, and when his turn came all the quarter sections of which he knew had been taken. Learning this, the man next to him gave him the description of a quarter section and recommended him to it. Accordingly, he applied for and obtained this lot. He paid his $10 fee and $160 instalment on the purchase money. When he came to visit and he found that the land had been mislaid, the land agent was utterly helpless. He applied for permission to make an exchange, to abandon the land he had been deceived into locating, and to get a quarter section of good land, the money he had paid being allowed to count towards his purchase. The matter was taken up to Mr. Oliver himself, and the decision was that the farmer might abandon the worthless land, might obtain a better farm, but must pay his $10 fee and $160 first instalment all over again. The Department obliged him to forfeit the $170 he had paid already.

This man is a genuine settler.
He is a farmer of experience, with a family in the country. From his standpoint the people of Canada have skinned him out of $170. The Department took advantage of an error made by the land agent to get that much of his money.

There is another case. An Englishman who had lived a good many years in Canada went to South Africa during the war,
and was entitled to a land grant.
Availing himself of his right to a homestead, a pre-emption and a land warrant, he located a whole section.
Somewhat the same sort of accident happened to him and he found himself with a square mile of worthless land on his hands.

Again appeals, again an appeal
unto Caesar, or at least Oliver;
and a decision that the man might locate another homestead and another pre-emption quarter section, but must keep the original worthless half section which he had got under his South African land warrant. This performance has not even the merits of consistency.

That is the condition into which the Department is drifting. It is becoming a hard-and-fast, red-tape bureau. The impression here is that it is getting into the old frame of mind of laying for the settler and trying to trip him up—of watching the man who is really subduing the soil, growing wheat and making a farm and a home, and the same old unfriendly anxiety to catch him tripping as that which it directs against the clever person who is trying to beat the rules for purposes of speculation.

The Man Who Can Order You
to Fight Fire.

Owing to the exceedingly dry
fall and the consequent danger from prairie fires the Department has thought it advisable to state that in addition to the special fire guardians appointed by the Minister of Agriculture the Prairie Fire Ordinance provides that all Councillors of Local Improvement Districts, Justices of the Peace and all members of the Royal North West Mounted Police are fire guardians by virtue of their offices and have the power to order out to fight fires
"Any grown-up male person under sixty years of age (other than postmasters, railway station agents, members of the medical profession, telegraph operators,
conductors, engineers, brakesmen, firemen, or trainmen) residing or then being within ten miles of a prairie fire or within fifteen miles of a bush fire to proceed at once to the locality of such fire and assist in extinguishing it; and any person neglecting or refusing without lawful excuse to obey any such order shall be guilty of an offence liable on summary conviction thereof to a penalty not exceeding $5.00."

THE REGISTERED TROTTER STALLION

"ZOMBERT" 2 29 1/2
Was sired by the world renowned
"Zombro" 2 11, the greatest show horse and sire of extreme speed that ever lived. Besides many other great ones he sired "Italia" 2 04, world's record for green mare, "San Francisco" 2 07, world's record for three years old green stallion, "Hymettus" 2 08, world's record for three-year-old gelding. Zombro's claim to greatness rests not alone with his sire, as his 1st and 2nd dams were both great trotters and his 3rd dam was "Teresa," one of the twelve greatest mares that ever lived. Come to my barn and carefully study his fabulous pedigree, and you will be convinced he is a Prince and son of a King. The Zombros have fourteen times won the world's handicaps, and bred a mare or two to a Zombro you will win. For the present season he will stand for service at my livery and feed barn on Alexander Street, Red Deer, Alta., at prices within the reach of all.

A Straight Question and a Straight Answer

Are all headaches due to eyestrain? No, they are not; but those persistent headaches, especially in the region of the eyes and across the forehead, are almost sure to arise from this cause. There is no way to secure relief from headaches of this kind except by wearing correctly fitted lenses properly adjusted for the eyes. Remember a "near sight" correction will not do, it must be exactly right. When you consult me in matters of this kind you have the guarantee furnished by my wide knowledge and extensive experience.

Co-operative Marketing.

Written by J. B.

A movement fraught with great possibilities to the future prosperity of the country is now on foot amongst the members of the U.F.A. of the Red Deer and adjoining Unions.

This is simply a movement to induce all the farmers in the country to club together so that they can place their products on the market in such a way that it will bring a price somewhat commensurate with its value. This the individual farmer cannot do.

This movement is strictly in accordance with the aims and objects of the U.F.A. Farmers everywhere feel the burden of being handicapped in this matter, but to the farmer here in Alberta the grievance is doubly aggravated, because of the nature of our products and because of our peculiar location.

Here we have to endure the tantalizing fact that right near home is a demand for nearly all we produce. There are many ready customers who are eager to take it and pay us a good price, and yet between us and these customers is a great gulf fixed, which in the majority of cases it is found impossible to cross, and in the case where the attempt is made swallows up all the profit which should accrue to the farmer. The officials of the U.F.A. are continually flooded with enquiries 'on the one hand from consumers in B. C. for our produce, and requests on the other from our members to aid them in the disposal of this stuff, and yet it is impossible to make the connection without some organization or some machinery to work with.

To effect this, at least locally, the attempt is now being made to organize through the surrounding U.F.A. branches a systematic working force. To accomplish this a meeting was held in the fire hall, Red Deer, last Saturday, and a committee was appointed to frame a prospectus and bylaws to govern the work of the scheme, and adjourned to meet again on Wednesday, Oct. 13th, at 2 p.m. in the fire hall, Red Deer, to receive the report of the committee, to consider these bylaws, and if found necessary to make amendments to the same.

It is unquestionably to the interest of every farmer in the country, to be present at that meeting, whether a member of the U.F.A. or not. This matter has been brought up time and time again, but in every case we have foolishly allowed the presence of work at home in harvest to keep our minds off the question until one and another had sold their produce or a part of it for whatever they could get at the first chance, fearing they might never get another, thus gradually weakening each other's hands and defeating our own ends.

We are just now at the beginning of our selling season, and if we do not take immediate action a repetition of the former condition of affairs will prevail.

We are indebted to a kind Providence for a bountiful harvest, the fruits of our toil have been abundantly repaid from a producing standpoint, and our cattle and hogs have been growing apace. Now it is up to ourselves to see that we do not wilfully throw away our advantages because of our lethargy in this matter. Do not fail to attend this meeting; do not leave it for others; we each need the others advice and counsel. 1,000 tons of hay will bring more per ton than 10 tons; 50,000 bus. of oats will bring more per bus. than 50 bus.; 50 cars of hogs or cattle will bring more per head than will 10 or 20 head. Fellow farmers, this is no fake unless you conspire to make it so by your inaction in the matter.
